SENSORY CONTROL

In this system, one can be outside but still have full control of their sensory experience in space A by adjusting the position of B. At their extremes, the positions of B can make someone feel fully closed out or full exposed to the city.

SENSORY CONTROL PAVILION

A Pavilion within a public park that allows for different activities by adjusting the openness to let in/ out more sensory reception from the city. The panels are manually pulled open by occupants.
