SYSTEM DESCRIPTION

The threshold is located at the Swanston St, the first floor of Melbourne central, the window of Seoul Station. When the windows of the shop are opened, two circles of different sizes appear. These two circles are used for ordering and taking meals. People order hot dogs and pay, then they can get the food they want. The wall of the Seoul Station is made of metal sheet and this kind of material highlight the threshold and inside space becomes visible. This threshold shows how the object passes through the two circles. The objects enter in the small circle and after making some changes, exits from the large circle. It reflects the circulation through the threshold.
