"PSYCHOLOGICAL METAMORPHOSIS"

Embracing a distinguished Architectural features helps this building element stand out from the rest of its surrounding Architecture. The Vestibule fashions a massive Granite frame that incorporates large windows on both its sides, although its most distinct feature would be its skylight roof that provides an abundant supply of natural light that brightens up the vestibule and creates an aesthetically pleasing ambiance within its structure, an ambiance which calls for attention from those who pass through it, a welcome distraction that for a brief minute or two, makes them forget about the commotion. This Vestibule acts as a threshold of transition in a state of mind, from a distracted and busy mind to relaxed and calm one in awe of its surrounding. This threshold comes through in a strategical place that benefits its bypasses through various times of the day by using its surrounding as a tool.
